Many times have I left the borders of my own land. I am here with good men whom I trust and trust me. We set aside our lives for the benefit of others, with belief in the democracy that has made our nation great. We go to give these people the same freedoms we enjoy without question. I hope I am able to keep my resolve and to keep focus on what is important and what is right. Everyday I drive through these gates I am reminded of those who have ridden here with me but will not make the trip home.

Lest we forget
